MUSIC FOR THE PALATE. COMPOSED IN JALAPA

AN INVITATION
UNVEIL THE CURTAIN OF DOMINIUM

There is a valley in Nicaragua where the soil holds its secrets well.
Where tobacco grows the way it should, unhurried. It does not shout. It composes.

That valley is Jalapa. That tobacco is Dominium

When you light a Dominium, slow down. Listen.
There are notes here worth finding, a rhythm worth following, a finish worth staying for.

Walk with us in the fields of Jalapa.

We invite you in.

OUR STORY

FROM SEED TO A MASTERPIECE

Dominium began not as a business but a conviction.

Iván Gancedo has spent his on the world's great stages - a tenor who understands that what is not played matters as much as what is.

It was that same instinct for restraint, pacing, and composition that led him to Jalapa. There, in the volcanic red clay of a valley most of the world had never heard of, he found a tobacco that deserved the same discipline he gave to music.

Two crafts. One conviction: that the finest things are never rushed, never forced, and never made for applause alone.

The cigars are handcrafted in Jalapa by a master of tobacco, of soil, of patience and blended from tobacco grown and harvested by artisans who have known this land for generations. Every blend is composed the way a great piece of music is born - with balance, intention, and something left to discover at the end. Not to impress. To endure.

The founder of Dominium Cigars - Iván Gancedo
